THE STUDENT BURGLAR.

HIS STATEMENT IN COURT OF THE CRIME COMMITTED BY HIMSELF AND HIS TWIN BROTHER.

The scene in court on the 20th of May, when Luther Foster, the student burglar, was called for sentence, was quite touching. The Hon. John K. Tarbox appeared for young Foster, and made an earnest appeal for judicial clemency. He received permission from the court to introduce a statement of the accused young man, which was as follows.

"I was 21 years old last October; Arthur was my twin brother; we have lived in various places since we were 11 years old, and have not had a home; we were employed by various farmers in that neighborhood; I entered Phillips Academy one term later than my brother, one year ago last term; I had some money when I entered, saved out of my earnings; about two weeks before the final affair my brother spoke to me about going over there, to Wilson's, whom I knew; I thought he must be joking; no more was said about it for two or three days; on Saturday night he said he was going over, and I said he had better not; finally, I was persuaded to go with him; we started about 12 o'clock, went over to the house, around to the back of the house to a window, where we took out a pane of glass, removed a seal which fastened the window, and opened it; I staid outside at the window while my brother went in and was gone some time; he came back to the window at length and said Mr. Wilson was not at home; we then returned; about a week or two after this my brother again spoke about the matter; I said something about not going again; he said he would never give it up, and so I went with him; we went to the same window as before, and opened it in a similar manner; we then went up stairs to the chamber door, where we remained a few minutes and then came down; I said we had better give it up; he replied, 'I will never give it up;' we then returned up stairs and stood by the door, when we heard a slight movement within the room; we were standing side by side, when my brother put his shoulder to the door and burst it in; then the shot was fired; we both ran down stairs, and my brother fell at the window; I dragged him to the wall, where he died immediately; I then ran to my brother-in-law's close by, told him the story, and he came out. Shortly after I was arrested."

Foster was then asked what he knew about the pistol and red pepper, and testified:

"I can't say anything about the pistol because I don't know anything about it. I saw the pistol in my brother's room before starting, but I didn't know he took it; while in my brother's room he brought me a box of red pepper and said: 'Put it in your pocket'. I did so; I had no weapon about me but the pepper."

Miss Foster, an older sister of the defendant, was put on the stand. She testified to the peculiar and deep attachment which the twin brothers always bore toward each other, and that even in their childhood neither one ever said "I" in expressing an individual want, but "we." Arthur, she said, was also the leader in sports and mischief. After other testimony had been introduced relative to the previous good character of the accused, Mr. Tarbox spoke a few minutes, urging the attachment by which Luther had been drawn toward his brother, the fact that he was the weaker mind, and that he was always strongly under his brother's influence.

His Honor, Judge Allen, in commenting upon the case, said it was proper to consider the fact of the submission of the defendant to his brother, and the swift and fearful retribution which had followed, and that he did not seem to be the principal in the affair; but still all the evidence shows that he was there, and that they were armed with dangerous weapons, which they fully intended to use if necessary, and that in law he must bear the whole burden. While there is a sad and sympathetic side to the case, there are also the demands of justice and the protection of society to be taken into account. The clerk then read the sentence, that "Luther Foster be confined for a term of seven years, in the State prison at Concord, one day solitary, the remainder to be at hard labor." The unfortunate young man was not visibly affected by the sentence, although it is known that he expected it would be lighter.

USEFUL RECIPES.

POTTED VEAL. Three and one-half pounds raw leg of veal chopped, one heaping tablespoon salt, one heaping tablespoon black pepper, eight heaping tablespoons pounded butter cracker, three tablespoons cream or milk, piece of butter size of an egg, two eggs, one nutmeg; mould into a loaf and put into a pan with a little water, and sprinkle over it bits of butter and some more pounded cracker; bake two hours and eat cold.

POTATO DUCHESSE. Take half a dozen potatoes, boil them, pass them through a sieve, and work into them in a bowl one gill of cream and the yolks of three eggs; add pepper, salt and nutmeg to taste, and some parsley finely chopped. When they are well mixed and smooth, take them up by tablespoonfuls, roll each in a ball, flatten it and flour it slightly. Lay them all in a pan with plenty of butter melted, and cook them slowly. Turn them over when one side is done, and serve hot as soon as both sides are colored.

FLAVORS. An article while hot should never be seasoned with an extract if it is possible to add it after it cools, as the heat wastes the strength of the flavor, and more must of course be used; where it is to be frozen, three times as much flavoring and sweetening also must be used as when it is to be eaten cold. The usual rule is a teaspoonful of lemon or vanilla to a quart of custard, blanc-mange, pudding, etc. For sauces twice as much is needed. Bitter almond and pineapple are both very strong, and when too much of either is used the result is unhealthful and unpleasant. One-fifth of a teaspoonful gives a delicate flavor. The fruits and the vanilla bean are used instead of the extracts. Where the fresh fruit can be had it is much better to use.

FASHION NOTES.

Sauce plates of crystal with handles are novelties.

The newest steel trimming is black lace finely beaded.

New kerchiefs in colored silk have borders of flowered gauze.

Mother of pearl spangles are mingled in bead embroidery.

Collars with rolling edges covered with blue or red are worn with cotton dresses.

Little baskets of straw or glass are now used to serve strawberries at dinner.

Little girls' kilt-plaited gowns have rows of buttons down every sixth or seventh plait.

Gray blanketing makes very good bath wrappers, the borders serving for trimming.

Olive and tea rose is one of the most exquisite of color combinations for evening wear.

Pink linen undergarments trimmed with black lace are fresh enormities in Parisian underwear.

The lily of the valley effect in chenille fringe is produced by pressing the strands at regular intervals.

Printed cambric dresses for morning, and satteen for afternoon, is laid down as the rule for Summer dressing.

The silk mull used for kerchiefs and collarettes this season is striped and is even more becoming than the plain.

Ties for travelling dress are about four and one-half inches wide and are made of mixed silk resembling the granite ribbons.

AGRICULTURAL ITEMS.

Though the leaves of plants are constantly surrounded by the nitrogen which constitutes four-fifths of the atmosphere, yet they do not absorb a particle of it.

The telegraph plant, found rarely in hot-houses, moves its leaves up and down on warm days in a succession of jerking movements, seemingly involuntary.

To grow perfect cabbages, put the plants down to the first leaves, so that the stem is all covered, else in the Autumn the stems will crack open. Set the plants two feet apart, and the rows three feet, and then they can be kept free from weeds more easily.

June, July and August are the best months for layering roses. If the soil dries quickly, water the layers twice a day, as they must be kept moist. By October they will be ready to be taken from the parent plant. Cut them off within two inches from the tongue. Dig deeply with a trowel to take them up and transplant where they will remain. The following Spring they should be pruned down to three or four buds. Some of them will flower in the Summer.

Advices from Paris say the correspondent of Voltane gives melancholy accounts of the state of the crops in the departments of Oran and Constantine, where everything, cereals, fruits, and vegetables is hopelessly lost. The effects of this condition of affairs are already making themselves felt. The colonists are selling their beasts of burden and the natives are getting rid of their flocks for a mere nothing, it being utterly impossible to find food for the cattle. The famine of 1867 is sure to recur. The Government has, it is true, taken precautionary measures, but the two millions of francs demanded will scarcely shield the colonists and natives from want. Hunger, too, is a bad counsellor, and poverty leads Arabs into violence. The condition of affairs in certain parts of Algeria seems to be growing more complicated every day.

The following is a process employed in the manufacture of butter at Hamburgh creamery, Hamburgh, N. J.: The milk is set in water at 50° by the deep-setting process, and is brought twice each day by the farmers to insure good sweet milk. After standing twenty-four to thirty-six hours it is then skimmed, and the cream placed in a room where the temperature can be so controlled that the cream will not be heated above 65°; it is then allowed to stand twenty-four hours, in which time it will generally have attained about the thickness of molasses; it is then fit for the churn, and is churned in the dash-churn at a temperature of 62° until the butter pellets are about the size of wheat grains; the churn is then immediately stopped, and cold water enough is added to reduce the temperature of the milk to 55°, which hinders the butter from being gathered into a solid mass; it is then turned from the churn, butter and milk both together, into a box made of sufficient size to hold and wash two hundred pounds at a time, in the end of which is a strainer that allows the buttermilk to drain off freely; then water enough at a temperature of 50° is poured into the box to float the butter, which is gently stirred and the water is drawn off, and the same process is repeated the second time, by which the butter is entirely freed from the milk, and left in the small grain-like product; it is now weighed, and one ounce of the best imported salt to the pound is stirred into the butter while still in its granular state, which leaves the grain of the butter in a perfect state: the whole product is then for the first time gathered into a solid mass, and put in proper receptacles, and placed in water and allowed to stand until the salt is thoroughly dissolved; it is then worked on the common inclined worker to free it from brine (as for milk there will be some if properly washed), after being properly worked it is packed in pails of seventy-five to eighty pounds each, and is then ready for market.

NEWS AND OTHER ITEMS.

The introduction into dyeing and calico printing of the colors obtained from coal tar has caused quite a revolution in these arts, the processes having become more simple and the facilities increased for obtaining every variety of tint.

Recent experiments by Mr. Waite, at Manchester, England, show that the superstition that prevails in favor of using castor oil to cool a hot bearing is without any warrant. No vegetable oil is fit to use as a lubricant; and castor oil is the worst of all, because the most viscious. If used it will surely set the mill on fire, as it has in other cases.

The revised New Testament is said to meet with almost universal disapproval in England, on account of the pedantic changes made in the translation, and there seems to be very little chance of it being adopted in preference to the vigorous King James version. The government has no intention of directing its use in the established church, to enforce which an act of Parliament is said to be necessary.

The most humble abode is made pleasant to the sight of all persons of good taste and refined feelings, when it exhibits flowers in its surroundings, or plants peeping out of the windows. Flowers are a luxury that the poorest may enjoy—the most common are among the most beautiful—and a few seeds are sown in the garden patch, however small it may be, or in a pot or a box, will in a short time gladden the heart of the sower, and all who look upon them, in the spirit of love, with a beauty and fragrance too exquisite for description.

Many good husbands are spoiled in the cooking; some women go about as if they were bladders and blow them up; others keep them constantly in hot water, while others freeze them by conjugal coolness; some smother them in hatred, contention and variance, and some keep them in pickle all their lives. These women always serve them up with tongue sauce. Now it cannot be supposed that husbands will be tender and good if managed in this way; but, on the contrary, very delicious when managed as follows: Get a large jar, called the jar of faithfulness, (which all good wives keep on hand,) place your husband in it, and set him near the fire of conjugal love, let the fire be pretty hot, especially let it be clear, but above all, let the heat be constant. Cover him with affection, kindness and subjection, garnished with modest, becoming familiarity, and if you add kisses and other confectioneries, let them be accompanied with a sufficient portion of secrecy, mixed with prudence and moderation. We would advise all good wives to try this receipt, and realize what an admirable dish a husband makes when properly cooked.

THE STAR ROUTE FRAUDS.

POSTMASTER GENERAL JAMES — MR. WALKER BLAINE AND THE STATE DEPARTMENT.

[From an Occasional Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 3, 1881.

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier:

One would naturally believe that when a Cabinet officer undertook to improve the service of which he was the head and to purge his department of every official who was not above suspicion, he would receive the encouragement and the plaudits of all citizens, but unfortunately such is not the case. When Postmaster General James assumed control of the Post Office Department he determined to make the postal service of the United States the model postal service of the world. Having been the Postmaster of the great city of New York he was familiar with all the details of the service; he knew in a general way that there must have been frauds practiced upon the Government in the "Star Routes" and he determined to break up, root and branch, these frauds, and to weed out from the service every man who by implication was connected with these rascalities.

It was no easy task to assume—the leaders in these frauds were men of ability, wealth and power; they owned or controlled several newspapers; they influenced and help make public opinion; stories were started, whispers uttered and assertions made which were intended to first provoke jealousies between the President and the Postmaster General; then between the Postmaster General and the Secretary of State; then the slanderers became bolder and openly made infamous charges against the President; then about the Secretary of State. All their attempts have failed. General James has the cordial and earnest support of the President and of the Secretary of State, as he has of every member of the Cabinet, in his efforts to bring to punishment every man who has violated the law and been a party to defrauding the United States in these "Star Route Frauds."

The Postmaster General frankly states that no man more warmly supports his course than does Secretary Blaine who urges him to see to it that he lets "no guilty man escape." These mad assassins who are trying by the most foul slanders to create dissensions between members of President Garfield's Cabinet will utterly fail and before long stand pilloried as scoundrels and villians on the docket of a criminal court. The authors of these slanders are all known and they will not be allowed to fasten their venomous fangs upon the high characters of the President, the Secretary of State and the Postmaster General, without being visited with the severest punishment of the law. These men who are engaged in this slanderous work have sunk to the lowest depths of depravity and wickedness. It is impossible to make them more infamous than they have made themselves, but it is possible to check their career of moral assassination. The Postmaster General is using all his power in directing the prosecution of these men who have defrauded the service and the people can rest assured that every effort will be used by Postmaster General James to bring to the knowledge of the people the whole history of these "frauds," and every man connected with them will be brought by the Attorney General to a speedy trial.

It will not stop here; we believe that all officers connected with the service who had knowledge of these frauds, or who by due dilligence should have had knowledge of the transactions will as fast as the evidence of these facts are obtained be requested to step "down and out." Postmaster General James is in many respects a very marvellous man. He is by profession a printer, having served through all the grades; he has had large and varied business experiences; is in the prime of life; a mild, genial temperament; a strong will; a man who thinks for himself and is true to his convictions; a strong friend; with no resentment in his make-up, but a desire to see exact justice meted out; with an unlimited capacity for work; a mind of a superior order; possessing great and marked executive ability, we predict that long before his term of office as Postmaster General expires, he will have revised the postal service, so that it will stand out and be acknowledged by all men as the MODEL POSTAL SERVICE OF THE WORLD.

The Post Office Department has had many able heads since the days of Samuel Osgood, its first officer. Such men as Timothy Pickering, John McLean, Amos Kendall, Francis Granger, Charles A. Wickliffe, Cor. Johnson, Jacob Collamore, James Campbell, Joseph Holt, Horatio King, Montgomery Blair, William Dennison, John A. J. Cresswell and Marshall Jewell, men of national reputation, have presided over this department, but, we predict that in the future no one of these men will occupy a higher position in the annals of fame, then will the name of Thomas L. James.

During the absence of Mr. Hitt, the Assistant Secretary of State, in Europe, Mr. Walker Blaine, the eldest son of Secretary Blaine, has been performing the arduous and delicate duties of this office. Mr. Blaine is a very remarkable young man. He is only twenty-six years of age, is a graduate of Yale and of Columbia Law School; has spent some time abroad. He possesses his father's vigorous intellect, and also like him, is entirely free from any semblance of snobbishness or aristocratic seclusiveness. His thoughtful consideration for every one, his gentle, affable manner which is the overflow of a generous heart and a broad mind, wins for him nothing but just praise. It is safe to say that he is one of the most popular men in Washington, and he has already exhibited such a degree of discretion, ability and high integrity that he is the trusted confidant of Cabinet officers. Mr. Blaine was settled in St. Paul at the time of his father's appointment as Secretary of State, but we were very glad to learn from him that he intends to establish his residence in Augusta and cast his fortunes hereafter with the people of Maine.

He is an honor and a credit to any State, and we predict for him a brilliant future. The Secretary of State has brought to his department the benefit of his great mind and large experience, and he is as sure to take the first rank among the statesmen of the world as the seasons are sure to come and go. He expects to return to Maine soon with his family, and he will spend a portion of the summer in the State of his adoption, which has brought honor upon itself by honoring him. BANGOR.

THE PROGRESS OF THE CONTEST.

The Tactics of the Conkling Managers.

[Albany Special to N. Y. Tribune, June 3.]

Yesterday was one of the Conkling men's blue days. They lost a vote in the Assembly; two of their most distinguished men had, if the current rumors are true, an unmistakable quarrel; some of the minor chieftains took to bickering, and there were signs of disintegration in several directions not the least of which was the apparent willingness of a certain faction within the faction to treat for terms of peace with some of the Administration leaders. To-day was one of their brighter days. They not only held all their members, which is accomplishing a good deal considering the private sentiments of a number of them, but they gained one for Mr. Conkling, bringing him back to his original strength, and gained two for Mr. Platt. They got encouragement from the fact that there was no rapid concentration among the Administration men, and also from some movements set on foot in the Administration wing. They received a new lease of life, talked about standing firmly together, and some of the more buoyant of them predicted that the outcome will yet be the election of Mr. Conkling and some other stalwart. Mr. Platt was thrown overboard long ago, and no one pretends any more that he has the slightest idea of throwing him a life-preserver.

CONKLING'S TACTICS.

The best judges among the Administration leaders believe that Mr. Conkling's whole aim is to prevent a choice by this Legislature. In that case any one of three results is possible: First, that the next Legislature will be Democratic and will elect two Democratic Senators. A good many persons sincerely think that Mr. Conkling would rather see this than have two Administration Senators elected, or even one Senator chosen from among his old opponents. Second, that if the next Legislature shall be Democratic, Governor Cornell could call the present Legislature back in November or December and Mr. Conkling could try to force his election by calling up two Democratic Senators as the only alternatives. Third, that Mr. Conkling might undertake an active campaign for the control of the next Legislature. Under his leadership especial attention has always been paid to the election of Conkling men to the Legislature, and the machine has been used in every part of the State to secure the nomination of such men. The anti-machine men having great odds against them have made little effort in this direction and a specimen result may be seen in the composition of this Legislature, in which about three-fourths of the Republicans are what is known as machine men. The fact that Mr. Conkling can get only 35 votes out of this number shows how strong the sentiment of the people is.

OVERTURES TO DEMOCRATS.

While Mr. Conkling's ultimate object is believed to be an adjournment, he is not above trying other devices, all of which tend to prolong the session; and to help the main scheme. Well-informed Administration men claim to have positive evidence that he has been continuing his overtures to the Democrats during the past week in spite of all the coldness they have shown him. These gentlemen believe that Mr. Conkling would even offer the Democrats one of the two Senators, but the Democrats know that Mr. Conkling would perhaps find it difficult to turn over the votes needed to elect, and that is one reason why these alleged negotiations seem to make no progress. Another is that a number of prominent Democrats like Erastus Brooks and General Spinola and others are absolutely opposed to any such bargain, believing that it will do the party more harm than good in the long run.

Another method the Conkling men have of prolonging the session without seeming to be responsible themselves is to encourage the scattered voting among the Administration men. There is reason to suspect that some of the complimentary voting being done by members who would not dare to vote for Conkling and Platt is really in their interest. There are a few men at least in the Legislature whose sympathies with the Conkling wing and with Mr. Conkling himself are just as lively as ever, and who care nothing for questions of political morals, such as the duty of Senators not to betray the State into the hands of the enemy. These men could not vote for Conkling and Platt without political annihilation, but they can vote for obscure men who have no chance of election, for local statesmen, State officers and the like, and thus by keeping off a concentration of the Administration men be helping Mr. Conkling all the time without seeming to do it. Some of the Administration leaders deny that this element is of any considerable size. Some put the number of members as low as five, but the element exists and its presence adds to the difficulties of the phenomenal situation. Such men can have any number of plausible excuses. They may be supporting some candidate from their district of the State who really hopes to be elected, and can plead that they are only standing by their friends, or they may be using the name of some distinguished citizen whose reputation alone seems to be a sufficient excuse for the vote.

If the Conkling men can keep up some division in the Administration vote until the Legislature is worn out, and then an adjournment should be had, they would be in a position to argue that the failure to elect was quite as much the fault of the other side as their own, and they would seize on this advantage.

RIVALS, BUT FRIENDS.

The best of feeling, however, prevails among the friends of the Administration candidates. It is already understood that any one of them shall retire when it is the general sense that he cannot be nominated, and if factious divisions are kept up until the last, it ought to be easy to fix the responsibility for them.

There is still another feature in the Conkling campaign—a scheme to work up a "reaction." It is believed that the Conkling managers will labor to produce the impression that the sentiment of the State is gradually turning. Mr. Conkling did make a mistake they will say, but he has been a great leader and he has been harshly treated in this matter. If the dead-lock should be prolonged several weeks they hope that enough of an artificial sentiment could be built up in this way to allow men who would secretly be glad of a pretext to vote for Mr. Conkling to do so. It may be that Mr. Conkling thinks thinks there will be enough of this "reaction" to give him a chance of re-election, but if it should not be so it is easy to see how it would help him to prolong a dead-lock and so bring about an adjournment.

CONKLING STRATEGY FRUITLESS.

It ought to be added here that every attempt the Conkling managers have made thus far at manufacturing sentiment in their favor has been a dismal failure. Their machine made telegrams have not come from men of prominence. The response to their drafts on the State for petitions has been ludicrously meagre, and in some cases, as in that of the Auburn petition of the other day, it is said that many signatures were obtained under misapprehension.

LATE ASPECTS OF THE CANVASS.

One of the stories afloat to-night is that Conkling and Platt are making preparations to withdraw and put Chief Judge Folger and Speaker Sharpe in the field in their stead; but this is not generally credited, especially as both these men men belong to the Arthur wing of Republicans, and the Cornell wing would hardly approve of the ticket. Some of the Conkling men to-night have been talking of a ticket composed of Conkling and one Administration man, and threatening that rather than go any further than this they will stay here until January; but these were merely members of the Legislature who are accustomed to taking orders, not to giving them, and there is no reason to suppose they speak with any authority.

There was a halt in the upward movement of Governor Cornell's vote to-day. Contrary to plans that had been prearranged for pushing it still higher by taking some votes from William A. Wheeler, the Governor, in fact, lost four votes, receiving only 19 votes for the short term, instead of 23 yesterday, and the same total, 13, for the long term. It is too early to say how far the new course of the Administration leaders may affect the Governor's prospects as a candidate, which have seemed so bright up to the present moment. The Governor is understood to preserve still the same reticence upon this subject. The men over whom he has a direct influence still vote for Mr. Conkling or do not vote for the Governor, and his relations with Mr. Conkling seem unchanged. A number of the Administration men have voted for the Governor because they thought his election the best solution of part of the difficulty, but others have not felt like following this example until they were sure that if elected Governor Cornell would be in thorough accord with the Administration, and the suspicion that Mr. Cornell has not resented Governor Cornell's candidacy because, as some persons believe, he would be secretly pleased to see the Governor elected in Platt's place, has got abroad, and a number of the Administration men say they want to know more about the course the Governor would be likely to pursue in the future before putting him in the position to become a formidable candidate, and perhaps to help some other candidate through.

Twenty-four hours ago the air was full of predictions that A. B. Cornell would be one of the two Senators, but a change came this morning. The Governor's vote halted and dropped a little and both sides are awaiting developments respecting his future course. The coolest judges among the Administration men believe that one of the two Senators will have to be a Stalwart to satisfy the large Stalwart element among the men who are refusing to vote for Conkling, and they have a kindly feeling toward Governor Cornell.

To-morrow's ballot promises to be unimportant. Nearly fifty members have secured pairs and have already left the city, some of the pairs lasting until Tuesday. Under these circumstances there is not likely to be any material change in the relative votes for the candidates. It was found impracticable to carry out the resolution of the Administration conference forbidding pairs, for many of the members had business engagements. Only one ballot is expected to-morrow.

A Mocking Demon Stalking Abroad. All Danger from it averted by a Skillful Physician.

There are for many reasons, few diseases more to be dreaded than Erysipelas, and it has, not inaptly, been termed "St. Anthony's Fire." There is no disease which so completely deforms and disfigures the visage of the patient; and it may fairly be compared to a red mask thrown by a mocking demon over the human face. It is almost as dangerous as it is repulsive. Arising from a variety of causes, running its course with pain—it often ends suddenly in death. The old treatment consisted of blood-letting and the use of strong drastic purgatives. The substance of the enlightened modern treatment is all contained in Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy." Use this, and you have taken the essential total of all the best physicians in the land could prescribe for Erysipelas. A case in point. Mr. S. B. Carpenter, of Grandville, N. Y., writes that he had for some time been afflicted with this disease in both legs, and has regained his health by the sole use of "Favorite Remedy." Other cases might be cited did space permit. "Favorite Remedy" is also sure in its action in all other diseases of the blood. Ask your druggist for it, or address the Proprietor, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, New York.

SOMETHING NEW.

NEW CLARION RANGE,

With Glass Oven Door.

We are now manufacturing this splendid and justly popular Cooking Range with a plate of thick French plate glass, 8 by 14 inches, inserted into the oven door. This improvement is valuable and can be best appreciated by housekeepers. All articles can be seen while in process of baking or roasting, without opening the oven door, thereby preventing all odors from escaping, and all kinds of pastry and cake from falling, and insuring a perfect success in roasting meat and poultry. The glass is the best French plate and capable of withstanding intense heat, while no smoke or steam can obstruct the view from the oven. The glass is in a frame which is attached inside of the door, and can be removed without danger of breaking, or replaced with a Cast Iron Panel and Nickle Name Plate, which is furnished with each Range with Glass Door. Many thousands of these ranges are in use. It is the smoothest, best made and most economical and durable Range ever sold in any State. Please call and examine it before purchasing.

These Ranges are for sale in Bangor by the manufacturers and JOSEPH SEMPLE in Brewer by KELLEN & SPARKS and by all first class dealers throughout the State.

Reported Changes in the Treasury Department.

WASHINGTON, June 4. The Star states, on what it claims to be authority of an intimate friend of Secretary Windom, that a number of changes among prominent officers of the Treasury Department have been decided upon. These changes include both Assistant Secretaries, Appointment Clerk and the removal of Custodian Pitney and Cabugh, captain of the treasury watch. The Treasury investigation would, he said, have to do with all the predicted changes except Assistant Secretary French. His removal would be on account of the opposition to him by New York business men and others, who have business in relation to customs duties with the Department.

FROM ALBANY.

The Senatorial Contest.

THE SITUATION UNCHANGED

Gen. Grant Interviewed.

Gov. Cornell.

ALBANY, June 4. The Tribune's Albany correspondent says that the coolest judges among the Administration men believe that one of the two Senators will have to be a Stalwart to satisfy the large Stalwart element among men who are refusing to vote for Conkling and that they have a kindly feeling toward Gov. Cornell.

What Platt Thinks.

The Tribune also has the following: Platt told a friend last night that he and Conkling would return to Albany as soon as they were sent for, but he could not tell exactly when that would be. He said that there was to be no meeting in this city over which Gen. Grant would preside, but that Gen. Grant would be in Albany next week to lend his influence in favor of Conkling and himself. As to the result he thought there was a prospect of a long deadlock but he had confidence that it would result in the return of Conkling; if not then two Democrats would be elected which would be a great misfortune to the Republican party.

A gentleman who has been in Albany and who had a long conversation with Platt last night and was authorized to speak for him said to a Tribune reporter: "The suppporters of the two ex Senators will stand as firm as the famous 306 at Chicago. The Administration Republicans will be unable to agree upon two candidates and the result will be a return to the ex-Senators of the votes that have been drawn away from them. Gen. Grant's presence in Albany will help Conkling. There is no possibility of a coalition with the Democrats but if it comes to a point where twelve Democrats can elect Conkling and Platt they can get them."

The First Ballot

In joint convention to-day the vote for a successor to Conkling stood—

Jacobs,	31
Conkling,	29
Wheeler,	13
Cornell,	18
Rogers,	13
Bradley,	1
Crowley,	2
Lapham,	4

Pairs.

The following Senators were paired:—Astor with Fowler, Williams with Murtha, Pitts with Seabacher, Schroeder with Stevens.

The following Assemblymen were paired: Andrews with Cowles, Brehan with Brooks, S. R. Wells with Boardman.

Changes.

The following were the changes: Madden, from Woodin to Cornell; Fenner from Fenton to Cornell; Holt, from Lapham to Rogers; Palmer, from Cornell to Crowley; Scott, from Cornell to Lapham.

Second Ballot.

The first vote to-day for a successor to Platt stood:

Kernan,	31
Depew,	23
Lapham,	2
Folger,	3
Miller,	3
Van Cott,	1
Fenton,	1
Platt,	26
Cornell,	8
Crowley,	3
Dutcher,	2
Tremaine,	3
Wheeler,	1

Changes.

The following were the changes: Fenner, from Cornell to Fenton; Holt, from Tremaine to Cornell; Sheehy, from Cornell to Tremaine; Young, from Lapham to Tremaine.

The convention then adjourned to Monday at noon.

Insisting on Jacobs' Withdrawal.

NEW YORK, June 4. An Albany special to the Express says that leading Democrats are insiting on John C. Jacobs withdrawing his name from the Senatorial candidacy.

General Grant Interviewed.

NEW ORLEANS, June 4. In an interview on the steamer City of Merida Gen. Grant said: "The press and some people—Gov. Young of Ohio for instance—seemed to think I should abandon the right which every American citizen may exercise to speak his mind on public concerns and political affairs of the country. The papers abuse me when I give vent to my views on public matters, which, however, I shall continue to express whenever I think proper, just like any other private citizen. My opinion about this Conkling affair is fully given in the letter I wrote to Senator Jones, of Nevada, as soon as I heard of the way Conkling was being dealt with."

"Then you think Conkling should be re-elected?"

"He certainly should be re-elected as a vindication of his course and would be if I had anything to do with it."

"Is it probable, General, that you will take any active part in the Conkling fight for re-election?"

"No, I am not even going to New York directly, but will take a trip to St. Louis, Galena and Chicago, remaining a day or so at each."

The Ex-Senators in New York.

NEW YORK, June 4. Ex-Senator Platt left 5th Avenue Hotel this morning and went down town to attend to his business, while ex-Senator Conkling remained in the hotel and denied himself to all visitors while attending to some private matters.

Conkling and his Friends.

NEW YORK, June 4. Senator Conkling remained at the Fifth Avenue Hotel until the afternoon, when he went out with a bundle of law papers, presumably to visit one of the courts or to the law library, and did not return until evening. Ex-Senator Platt went to his office in the morning and returned in the afternoon. Said no conference had been or would be held and that he and Conkling had talked over the situation with their friends. He thinks there will be a long dead-lock, which can only be terminated by adjournment.

Vice President Arthur arrived in this city to night. State Treasurer Wendell, Postmaster Creigh, Attorney General Ward and ex-Superintendent of Insurance Smythe, also came to the city and went to Long Branch, where they are guests of ex-Collector Murphy. Later in the evening ex-Senators Conkling and Platt left their hotel and it was said went to Vice President Arthur's house. Probably the two ex Senators will return to Albany to-morrow evening.

Expected to Return To-day.

ALBANY, June 4. In the joint convention to-day there were forty-eight absentees, all paired. Vice President Arthur went to New York this afternoon. It is reported that he will return with Conkling and Platt to-morrow or Monday.

A Contradictory Report. Gen. Grant now Expected in New York.

NEW YORK, June 5. Senators Conkling and Platt remained at the Fifth Avenue Hotel all day, receiving but few visitors. Gen. Arthur dined at the St. James Hotel with Senator Jones, of Nevada. In the evening Messrs. Conkling, Platt and Arthur, met in the Fifth Avenue Hotel and it was stated that the discussion related to one of the Senators, probably Mr. Platt, going to Albany to-morrow morning. Grant is expected to arrive on Tuesday or Wednesday and cast his influence for Senator Conkling.

NEW YORK, June 4. It is understood that a syndicate, headed by Geo. Wm. Ballou & Co., of New York and Boston, has succeeded in obtaining control of the Kentucky Central, with a view of extending the road seventy-one miles to Livingston, and making valuable connections with the Louisville & Nashville, Chesapeake & Ohio and other tributary trunk lines. The Kentucky Central will have the advantage of a connection at Cincinnati, with the narrow gauge system of Toledo, Deephos and Burlington, thus giving a valuable outlet to Toledo and the lakes.

THE AGITATION IN IRELAND.

WHAT THE LONDON TIMES THINKS OF THE LAND LEAGUE.

LONDON, June 4. The Times leading article says: We have only to consider the condition of Ireland and the temper of the Irish peasantry on the one hand, and such speeches as those of Arch Bishop Croke, at Holy Cross, and Mr. Parnell, yesterday, on the other, to satisfy ourselves of the complicity of the Land League, its leaders and abettors with what is now nothing more nor less than a conspiracy to defy the law.

The cry of the League is no longer a protest against arbitrary evictions; it is now the immoral doctrine that a tenant may refuse to pay what he considers unjust rent, even though he is perfectly able to pay. This is the agitation now revealed in all its nakedness, of which Arch Bishop Croke, appointed minister of a religion professing peace and charity to all men, says it is not revolutionary, not an irreligious movement, nor a movement calculated to injure anybody.

It is difficult to read such words with common patience. It is not land lords alone who suffer under this cruel, lawless terrorism, but hundreds and thousands who are dependent on them, such as mortgagers of rent charges, holders of jointures etc., all of whom are absolutely guiltless. No word of sympathy for these helpless victims has escaped the sacred lips of a minister of the gospel, yet Parnell can cooly exhort the government to follow Arch Bishop Croke's advice. The audacity of Mr. Parnell in repeating Croke's advice in the House of Commons is simply astounding. "Let us see," said Arch Bishop Croke, "whether there will be that willingness on the part of the people to submit quietly to the terms of the land lords, or not." In other words the government is exhorted to leave the landlords to the mercy of a peasantry inflamed by a reckless agitation, in order to prove what is perfectly clear already that they would get no mercy at all to say nothing of justice.

Force may be no remedy, but when the law is openly defied and the defiance justified as a movement calculated to injure nobody, it is necessary before all to vindicate the authority of the law.

A FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT

Caused by the Forgetfulness of a Telegraph Operator.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, June 5. A railroad accident took place on the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad at two o'clock this morning, four miles west of this city. Two heavily loaded freight trains collided, plunging into one indescribable mass over thirty freight cars laden with lumber, agricultural implements, corn and hogs, the wreck piling up much higher than the telegraph poles. The engineer and fireman of the east bound train were badly injured, but the engineer and fireman of the west bound train jumped and saved themselves. The head brakeman of each train was killed. The responsibility for the accident rests with Charles B. Lewis, the night operator here, he having had orders to hold the west bound train until the eastern train had passed, but forgot to deliver the orders and allowed the train to proceed.

COLORADO.

DENVER, April 5. Governor Pitkin today received a telegram from the sheriff of Conejas county, saying the county is powerless against armed desperadoes. Allison the leader threatened to attack Antoniete and Conejos. We have good men but no arms. The Governor at once offered a reward of $1000 for the capture of Allison and $200 each for the remainder of his gang. He also ordered arms shipped to Antoniete.

FOREIGN NEWS.

War Hawk Arrested.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 5. Palmer, better known in England and America as the War Hawk, has been arrested on suspicion of being the chief conspirator in a plot. He was arrested at Porte and papers were found in his possession, proving he had undertaken, in case of war with Greece, to blow up the Turkish fleet. But this is probably an invention, for some days ago Palmer told several persons he was about to be arrested and it may be safely assumed if he had any papers of that kind he would have destroyed them. The affair is as yet rather mysterious.

The Standard's Dublin despatch says all the troops stationed in that city will be confined to their barracks to day. The same despatch says the riot in Cork on Friday night, the gravity of which has been exaggerated by previous reports, was not of a political character.

Fred Atwood's advertisements in this morning's paper are of interest to farmers. Attention is also invited to his advertisements of horse rakes and $6.50 plows.

The Executive Council have adjourned to reassemble June 29th. Previous to closing up the business they voted to abate the tax imposed upon the Eastern railroad $550, on the ground that the road does not have so many miles of track in the State as they took as a basis in levying the assessment.

KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION. Mr. Allan Ramsey, who has been in the vicinity of the Black Hills for some time past, wrote to his father, who resides in Portland, a short time ago that he should start for home this month on a visit. A telegram was received Friday saying that the young man was blown to pices by an explosion a day or two before he was intending to start on his journey.

A SERIOUS AFFAIR AND ARREST. An intoxicated man, who was creating a disturbance in Columbia street last night, on being told by Officer Walker to go home, drew upon that officer a wicked looking stiletto, which was taken from him before he had time to use it. He then drew a revolver, but he was also deprived of this weapon, and he was then taken to the police station.

A TREMENDOUS AVALANCHE. On the 18th inst., near the "Gull Cliff Light," Grand Menan, a tremendous avalanche of rocks and earth fell from the summit of the great cliff into the sea, and among the yawning chasms at the foot of the cliff, with the roar of thunder. Hundreds of tons of earth and rocks took the terrible leap from summit to base, causing the ground in the vicinity to shake and tremble as if agitated by an earthquake.—Eastport Sentinel.

A DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR. Just about the time people were on their way to church last evening two young fellows had a free fight on Kenduskeag bridge, in front of Strickland's Block, and the crowd which congregated completely obstructed the sidewalk for some minutes. It was a most disgraceful affair and we certainly hope that the two offenders will be introduced to Judge Brett and receive such punishment as will at leat teach them to respect the Sabbath day in the future.

Rev. Mr. Thomas, who has frequently lectured in this city to the great delight of his audiences, has resigned his position as pastor of the Harvard church, Brookline, over which he has been settled. He received some weeks since a very flattering call from one of the leading churches of Philadelphia. Upon his declining it the call was renewed a second and then a third time, each time with increasing inducements to accept. Their importunity will probably be successful. It is thought by his friends that his future residence will be Philadelphia.

THE CLARION RANGE. The Clarion Ranges now being manufactured by Wood, Bishop & Co., have thick plates of glass inserted in the oven doors. This is a convenient arrangement, as it enables one to watch the food in the oven while it is being cooked. A great many of these ranges are now in use and they are everywhere popular. The name of the old firm known as Wood, Bishop & Co. has become a household word among housekeepers, and their wide reputation has been fairly earned in consequence of the great popularity of the coal and wood furnaces, their Clarion range and kitchen and parlor stoves. Housekeepers are invited first to read their advertisement and then inspect their stock.

The private excursion to Fort Point on the steamer Little Buttercup, postponed last Saturday on account of the storm, will be had to-morrow (Tuesday), leaving the City of Bangor's wharf at 8 A. M., and returning at 6 P. M. The invitations for last Saturday will hold good for to-morrow.

BARNUM'S STREET PROCESSION. On Monday, June 13th, will be witnessed in our streets Barnum's gratuitous street procession, which, in the language of the great showman, "presents a long line of glitter, wealth and surprise never witnessed in any age prior to this," including "thousands of untold sensations sun-eclipsing in their brilliancy and heaven-blending in their starry beauty, more enchanting and bewitching in their effect than a delightful Indian dream, and far too rich and glorious for tongue or pen to describe. It is a fitting indication of the many excellencies which are to follow underneath the wide-spread tents."

To the Necrology of Bangor Seminary, for the last year, should be added Rev. John C. Edgar, who died suddenly of rheumatism of the heart, at Hubbarton, Vt., April 29, 1881, aged 43 years. An Alumnus of 1875. While connected with the Seminary in 1874-5, he supplied the Congregational church at Holden. He was of Scotch nativity, one of the famous "Queen's Own" Scotch Highlanders, who took part in the celebrated charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava. The hardships of his experience in the Crimean war showed its effects in after life, as his military physician predicted it would. He was settled in Heath, Mass., in 1875, and had recently gone to Hubbarton, Vt.

TEMPERANCE MEETING. The City Hall Sunday temperance meeting, held by the Reform Club, was small in numbers, but the exercises were highly interesting and as full of old-time earnestness as the most hopeful reformer could wish. President Hall of the Club, occupied the chair, and called upon Mrs. Hunt, Secretary of the Crusade, to read a portion of Scripture, and Chaplain Randall to lead in prayer. The audience than listened to remarks from the President, also Messrs. Montgomery, John Sheedy and C. S. Clark, of the Club; Mrs. Pickard, Mrs. Crossman and Mrs. Hunt of the Crusade; Col. W. T. Eastis of Dixfield, also a member of the Club, made a stirring appeal for those who are going wrong to repent and forsake; Paul R. Seavey, in a characteristic speech, added to the interest of the meeting. The singing was unusually fine. Signatures to the pledge were obtained. ***

PAINFUL ACCIDENT TO MR. PARKHURST. Yesterday forenoon, about ten o'clock, Mr. J. F. Parkhurst, of this city, the well known trunk manufacturer, met with a serious and most painful accident, being kicked by a horse, receiving the blow squarely in the pit of his stomach. It seems that a man was leading a mare followed by her foal past the residence of Mr. Parkhurst, when the colt left its dam and began to scrape acquaintance with a horse standing in the yard. Mr. Parkhurst, fearing mischief, went out to drive the colt away, when the mare let drive her heels with the result above described. He was picked up in an unconscious state, but very soon revived. Yesterday afternoon he was in considerable pain, but quite as comfortable as could be expected. The attending physician stated that the prints of the animal's feet were plainly visible upon the injured man's stomach. He also stated that it could not then be determined whether Mr. Parkhurst had sustained internal injuries, but that a few hours would decide. We certainly hope that his injuries may not prove to be of an alarming character.

A ROBBER'S RETREAT. The American says there is a narrow cut between two mountains about two miles from Franklin line, called "Hole in the Wall." The rocks are split and piled in a remarkable manner, giving the appearance of a Yosemite on a small scale. There is a deep cave in this mountain, which few ever heard of. The roof is composed of one solid piece of granite nearly thirty feet high, leaning at an angle of about forty-five degrees. About two years ago some barrels of flour and meal were stolen from a camping crew a short distance from this cave. Though the party was supposed to be known, at the time, yet no one knew where they were concealed. A few days ago, a party of pleasure seekers took it into their heads to visit this cave. At one corner there was noticed a dark passage which led, no one knew where. One of the party took courage and on "all fours" entered the passage. After crawling along for about fifteen feet he came to a high, broad room. This room, without doubt was the store house of the thieves, for here were empty barrels piled up in good order. The barrels of meat and flour were probably conveyed to this safe retreat during the night, and carried away in bags as wanted.

THE FIRE AT WEST GREAT WORKS.

The Destruction of Pearson's Mills

Loss $80,000; Insured $30,000.

The Particulars.

The majority of the readers of the WHIG were startled Saturday morning by the announcement that Pearson's splendid mill at West Great Works was in flames. At the hour of going to press nothing definite as to the extent of the disaster could be gleaned as the flames were still in progress, and attempts made to communicate with this office by telegraph and by telephone resulted in failure. At half-past seven Saturday morning the first despatch, sent from Oldtown, was received, which stated that the mill and other buildings were in ruins. An unsightly mass of twisted and ruined machinery, charred and blackened lumber and heaps of smoking debris, from the midst of which rises the lofty chimney, like a gloomy monument, is all that remains of one of the finest mills in New England. The loss of this fine block of mills is not only a very heavy blow to Mr. Pearson, who has the deepest sympathy of the entire community, but it means suffering, if not destitution, to many families in the vicinity of West Great Works; the village loses its business support, and seriously affects the business interests of Bangor.

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY PERSONS THROWN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT.

By this fire one hundred and sixty men are thrown out of employment, and a gloomy, depressed state of feeling has settled down upon the community.

EXTENT OF THE FIRE.

Besides the block of mills, which was 700 feet long and one of the finest appointed establisments in New England, containing four gangs of saws, two muleys, two rotary, one shingle saw, three lath machines, one clapboard machine, one stave machine, and one clapboard planer, there were destroyed the store of Jameson & Garland, the blacksmith shop, dry shed and a small unoccupied building belonging to the mills, 200,000 feet of cedar logs on the shore, a large amount of lumber on the pile, a box car partly loaded with shingles, two flat cars loaded with box boards, an empty platform car, 150,000 staves and some clapboards.

At one time Saturday morning nine houses in the village caught fire from sparks, but the flames were extinguished. The stock was mostly removed from the store; the little office building was saved.

THE LOSS AND INSURANCE.

The total loss is upwards of $80,000. There was an insurance of but $30,000, $20,000 of which was in D. M. Howard's agency, and $10,000 in P. M. Blake's. There was a force-pump, and iron hose running the whole length of the block, and an arrangement by which the mills could be flooded in a moment, but the conflagration was so sudden and intense, that the apparatus could not be used. The roof was newly shingled last year, and covered with fire-proof paint so that no sparks from the furnaces could catch fire to the roof. Mr. Pearson formerly carried an insurance of $65,000, but with his admirable apparatus, he has lately thought it unnecessary to more than have a minimum insurance. The above insurance will not more than cover the loss to the business and on the lumber and logs destroyed, so that the fine block of mills is a clear loss.

HOW THE FIRE ORIGINATED.

There are various theories as to the origin of the fire, but up to the present time nothing is known positively. The watchman employed at the mill states that he traversed the whole length of the block of mills at 11:30 Friday night, and there was then no appearance of fire; at 12 o'clock he went again on his rounds with the same result; he then passed into the watch-house, which has windows commanding a view of the buildings, and proceeded to eat his lunch. While thus engaged he suddenly perceived a light, and he rushed out. Fire was proceeding from the north end of the block, in No. 9 gang; but before he had run a rod the whole mill was on fire. A daughter of Mr. Rowe, who lives near, was awakened by the great light, and she at once awakened her father. He ran out and found the mills on fire from one end to the other, and not a man was to be seen about the buildings, or in the village of Great Works.

There are two furnaces used for burning waste wood, situated near, but one of these was not in use, as it was being repaired. The fire may have caught from the other furnace, but this seems hardly probable. It was more likely the devilish work of some incendiary. The firm has manufactured five million feet of lumber this spring, but had shut down the further end of the mill two weeks ago, for want of logs. It was in this part that the flames started. Friday two gangs only were run, but they were not in operation that night. The flames are said to have started near the river end of the block, and fanned by a strong east wind, blew directly toward the village.

FIGHTING THE FLAMES.

Two hand engines from Oldtown, the Torrent and the Dirigo, worked manfully. Steamer Victory and 700 feet of hose went up by a special train, alluded to in Saturday's paper, and reached the scene of the conflagration at about twenty minutes of four. The people of the village, men, women and children, worked with a will, bringing water from the river in pails, but the fire, fanned by a good breeze, had gained great headway, and when the steamer began to play, was at its height, the flames rolling high in the air and threatening the village with destruction. The fire was got under control by about 8 o'clock Saturday morning, but the edging beds continued burning for many hours.

WHEN THE MILLS WERE BUILT.

The mills were built in 1866 by Wm. T. Pearson and Wm. A. and Joseph L. Smith. The castings were furnished by the Hinckley & Egery Iron Co. In 1870 Mr. Pearson purchased the interest of the Messrs. Smith, since which time he has been the sole owner. In the manufacturing of lumber he had associated with him his nephew, Edgar C. Pearson, and the style of the firm was W. T. Pearson & Co. The village of West Great Works is a part of Oldtown, where two other great mill establishments, the Veazie and the Dwinel, were formerly burned. Thus, in a short period, the largest lumber manufactories in Maine have been destroyed by fire.

The Messrs. Pearson have a large number of very heavy orders on hand, and a million feet or more of logs were to have been turned in Saturday in readiness to start up in full blast this morning. Great preparations had just been completed for a very busy season. Thus it will be seen that the fire will prove far more disastrous in its results than would have been the case had it occurred in the fall.

The west bound freight train on the Texas & St. Louis railroad ran off the track Saturday while rounding a curve and was badly wrecked. A brakeman named Turner was killed and others mortally wounded.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

William J. Coughlin of Somerville, Mass., says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh, and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the Hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise, I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past.

"I write this hoping every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will take DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness. d1t&w no3 mar12

JUNE.

Open thy gates, O summer.
The air is balmy and sweet,
And a radiant guest is ready
To enter with fairy feet.
'Tis June with her brow of sunshine
And her wealth of green and gold,
With drapery graceful and falling,
And flowers in every fold.
O beautiful June, thou art come again!
O month of joy! O month of pain.

Thy face is the face of my darling
That lies beneath thy flowers,
And that comes to me with thy coming
On the wings of the golden hours;
The years are swift in passing,
But the memories fondly stay,
And time has no power to rob me,
Though it bears my youth away;
For, framed like thee in choicest gold,
Is the face of my love which cannot grow old.

Thy lilies were clasped in her fingers—
Not whiter the lilies than they—
When under thy skies which were weeping,
They laid my darling away.
There I planted a delicate rose tree,
Which thy coming calls to bloom,
Each year a sweet reminder
Of her heart's own sweet perfume.
Not fairer the bloom of these flowers of the sun,
Than the radiant life of my beautiful one.

And I read anew at thy coming
Sweet lessons of love and truth,
With the bitter lines of sorrow
I learned in my happy youth.
God sends a message golden
Each year in thy glowing train,
I would not fail in grasping,
Though with good it brings me pain
While I grieve for the beauty earth holds no more,
I catch a gleam of the heavenly shore.

PLANETS IN JUNE.

[From the Providence Journal.]

Mercury is evening star, and wins the place of honor as he is the only planet visible after sunset during the month, and is in one of the most favorable positions for observation that occurs during the year. On the 19th he reaches his greatest eastern elongation, or most distant point from the sun, and for ten days before and after that time, if the atmosphere is clear and the sky cloudless, he may be easily found. Mercury's elongation from the sun never exceeds a little more than twenty-seven degrees. On the 19th, it will be a little more than twenty-five degrees, nearly the maximum; he is also nearly at his greatest northern declination, both conditions being favorable for observation. At the elongation, he is above the horizon until about eleven minutes after 9 o'clock, a little more than an hour and a half after sunset. Observers should note carefully the point of sunset, for Mercury sets not far from one degree south of it. Three-quarters of an hour after sunset is the best time to look, for the long twilight will prevent his being seen much earlier. He will then be about twelve degrees above the horizon, shining with an intense white light sometimes tinged with yellow, and with a brilliancy almost unequalled by any other star. Unlike the other planets, he is a great twinkler, and appears to an imaginative observer as if he were almost blinded by the intensity of the sun's rays. When the planet has once been discovered, he becomes pefectly distinct to the view, and the observer is surprised that it is so difficult to detect his presence with the undirected eye. He will be a beautiful object in the June twilight, and the most favorable time to watch for him will be a few days before the elongation, for he is then at his point of greatest brightness. No one who once picks up this brilliant little planet will think any amount of pains-taking too great to secure the sight, while the delightful season of the year for out-door observation, and the absence of other planets from the evening sky, will make the view specially attractive. Mercury is passing now from his superior conjunction, which occurred on the 17th of May, to his inferior conjunction which will occur on the 17th of July. He sets now about twenty minutes before 9 o'clock; at the close of the month, a few minutes before 9 o'clock.

Uranus is evening star, but too far away to be visible to the naked eye. He is travelling toward the sun, and reaches his conjunction with the sun in September. He sets now about half an hour after midnight at the end of the month about a quarter before 11 o'clock.

Venus is morning star, and plays a brilliant role throughout the month, the fairest and brigthest of the grand planetary quartette that graces the morning dawn and heralds the coming of the great luminary from whom the planets borrow the power to illuminate the morning sky until its brilliant beams put out their more feeble light. Venus, it will be remembered, was in inferior conjunction with the sun on the 3d of May, passing between him and the earth, and reappearing on his western side as morning star. She has advanced far enough on her western track, to be a superb object before the breaking of the dawn, rising now about ten minutes before 3 o'clock, and hastening with rapid steps toward Saturn and Jupiter, who have scarcely raised their heads above the horizon, before she appears upon its verge in her most fascinating phase. On the 5th she overtakes slow-plodding Saturn, and passes so near him that there are only 11 minutes of a degree between them. On the 9th she reaches her second point of greatest brilliancy, having passed her first thirty-six days before inferior conjunction. She is then the loveliest star in the heavens bright enough to be readily seen after sunrise, and the objects illumined by her rays cast perceptible shadows. On the 19th she pays her court to Jupiter, passing two degrees and a quarter to the south. On the 19th the fickle Queen also pays her court to Neptune, passing one degree and a half north of him, thus coming into conjunction with three of the great members of the system in the space of two weeks. Seen through the telescope, she presents the appearance of a slender crescent, like the moon when a few days old, about one-fourth of her disc being illumined, and her distance from the sun being not far from forty degrees. Venus rises now shortly before 3 o'clock; at the close of the month at 2 o'clock.

Jupiter is morning star and ranks second in brightness in the grand planetary exhibition that makes illustrious the annals of June, 1881. He is approaching the earth, and before the end of the month will shine in increased size and brightness. On the 19th, four hours before his conjunction with Venus, he passes very near Neptune, being only forty-four minutes of a degree north. It is rare for four planets to be so near together. On the first of the month they all rise within twenty-four minutes. Venus appears first, followed in order by Saturn, Jupiter and Neptune, the latest comer being invisible.

The theory of planetary action as a motive power in producing solar disturbances has, for the first time since Jupiter's perihelion, found little to substantiate its claims to notice. The earth has moved on in its course, in spite of the sun spots, with scarcely any phenomena out of the ordinary experience to record on its latest monthly annals. Slight shocks of earthquake have been felt in New Hampshire and Illinois, and slight renewals in European localities of previous heavier visitations of this destructive agent, give proof of continued meteorological disturbance, and are to be carefully noted by those who watch the times and the seasons and seek to find out what mortals may learn of the laws that govern them. Jupiter rises now a few minutes after 3 o'clock; at the end of the month a little before half-past 1 o'clock.

Saturn is morning star, and the space is gradually widening that separates him from his more brilliant brother Jupiter. His close conjunction with Venus on the 5th has already been referred to, and there is little else to note in his movements for the month excepting his approach to the earth, which is also the advancing step towards an unusually brilliant opposition with the sun next November, when his widely-opening rings, high northern declination and approach to perihelion will make him an object of exceeding interest. He rises now at about four minutes before 3 o'clock; at the end of the month a few minutes after 1 o'clock.

Mars is morning star, and will soon become an object of interest as his path draws near that of Jupitur and Saturn, and his northern declination rapidly increases. He is the first of the morning stars to appear above the horizon, about seventeen degrees south of the sunrise point. He will be easily recognized by his red light and the absence of any other bright stars in his vicinity. He rises now at 2 o'clock; at the end of the month just before 1 o'clock.

Neptune is morning star, and though invisible to the naked eye, is worthy of notice from being so near Jupiter, Saturn and Venus on the same day, with only an interval of six hours bewteen the two conjunctions, while Jupiter and Venus meet and pass during the interval. Neptune rises on the first of the month at a quarter after 3 o'clock; at the end of the month about twenty minutes after one o'clock.

The June moon, falls on the 12th, and gives us the rare treat of a total lunar eclipse. No celestial phenomena is easier to understand. The earth passes between the sun and moon and obscures his light. It can only occur at the time of full moon and there would be a total eclipse of the moon every month if the sun's path and the moon's path were on the same plane or level. But the moon's orbit is inclined to the ecliptic about five degrees, therefore the moon must be at her node or crossing point at the time of full moon in order to be totally eclipsed. She is, however, much oftener far enough from her node to be above or below the earth's shadow when there is no eclipse, or she may be near enough to her node to pass through a portion of the earth's shadow when she is partially eclipsed. But on the morning of the 12th, the conditions are favorable for a grand exhibition of the darkening power of the earth's shadow. The moon is full, she is at her node, she is in perigee, or at her nearest point to the earth, and she will pass centrally through the earth's shadow. The eclipse begins, that is the dark shadow enters upon the moon, at 0h. 26m., or 26m. after midnight. Total phase commences at 1h. 29., and ends at 2h. 51m. The eclipse ends at 3h. 52m. On the 21st, the moon is in conjunction with Mars and Saturn. On the morning of the 22d, the heavens will present a superb picture, made up of the waning moon, the brightest planets, Venus and Jupiter. Between 5 o'clock on the morning of the 21st and 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the 22d, the moon is in conjunction with five planets, Mars, Saturn, Neptune, Jupiter and Venus.

It will readily be seen that June is full of promise for star-gazers. The planets that clustered around the setting sun, and more recently hovered closely around the rising sun, are now receding from him and forming combinations of exquisite beauty. The lovely summer morning sky beams with the rapid movements of the shining wanderers. Saturn and Jupiter are bidding farewell to each other for twenty years, as the distance on the celestial track widens between them. Venus passes them both in her rapid course, their varied movements causing two brilliant conjunctions. The three planets are drawing near to Mars, and before the month closes, the planetary quartette will rise in the small hours that precede the dawn, and the observer who would see the commencement of the show, must be at his post by 1 o'clock. His watch will be well repaid, as these celestial wanderers peer in turn above the horizon, commencing with ruddy Mars and ending with Venus, the fairest of the train. Mercury will perform acceptably his part in the programme by his bright shining amid the glories of the western twilight. The moon will not be behind the planets, as in waning light she pays her court to the planets in her course, and to her will be due the honor of being the chief actor in the culminating event of the month, when her full round orb is hidden by the shadow of the earth. She is, however, not totally eclipsed, for her disc, illumined by earth-light, shines with a lurid, copper-colored light, which, increased by the weird shadows, the reappearance of stars as the moonlight fades, and the solemn silence of midnight, lends a supernatural element to the sublime and awe-inspiring scene.

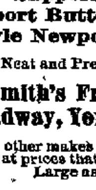

Ancient Order of Hibernians in Convention at Portland

A large delegation from Lewiston attended the annual State Convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, holden at Portland, on Monday and Tuesday, May 30 and 31. The various Divisions of the State were well represented. The report of ex-State Delegate Hand and the several county officers made a good showing for the State, giving a membership of nearly 500, with a treasury of $2,500, and property to the value of $450 00. State officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: D. M. Minnix, Portland, State Delegate; D. J. Murphy, Lewiston, State Secretary; George F. Keeley, Portland, State Treasurer. It was voted to hold the next State convention in Bangor, and adjourned after adopting the following resolutions, presented by J. E. Carrigan, of Lewiston:

Resolved, That we the representatives of the different divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of the State of Maine, in convention assembled, knowing the deep interest our Order has taken in an effort to unite our people in one bond of brotherhood, and seeing the noble example the Orangemen of Ireland have given us, by extending the right hand of fellowship to their Catholic brethren now struggling for their God-given rights that is, free land without rents of any kind, we, therefore, believe, as members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, we would not be doing our duty to ourselves or to those whom we represent, if we did not give expression to the great joy we feel at seeing our brothers in Ireland true to the great truths and principles they advocate—free land and liberty to all people, without regard to race, creed or color. Therefore,

Resolved, That so long as our people in Ireland stand true and steadfast to those truths, and accept no compromise, but insist on the rights God gave them—free land and the right to make the laws that they are governed by—we pledge them our moral, physical and financial aid, in this, their great struggle, that the whole world is interested in; and we advise them to not allow that piratical government to force them into open rebellion, before they are ready. We believe in settling all difficulties peaceably, if possible. But, if England, in her madness and blindness, should goad our people to armed resistance, for the purpose of murdering them by brute force, we, then, and not until then, pledge ourselves to retaliate in all and every means within our power; for the day is past, when England can murder our people and not suffer retaliation.

Now, brothers, do not for a moment get discouraged. The eyes of the world are upon us. Let the courage of our ancient race prove itself, in this, our final struggle. When we return to our different divisions, let us urge the necessity of subscribing a certain sum, monthly, for the men in the gap. Providing they are true, no compromise. When you have the thief by the throat, do not let go until he cries "enough," and returns that which he has stolen from you.

NO STAIRS TO CLIMB.

In the District Court of the United States for the District of Maine.
In the matter of WILLIAM K. LANCEY, Bankrupt. In Bankruptcy.

At Portland in said District, on the 25th day of May, A. D. 1881. Before Hon. Edward Fox, Judge of said District Court, in Bankruptcy.
District of Maine, ss.:—
Upon the application of Levi Greenleaf, of Pittsfield in the County of Somerset and State of Maine, Assignee of William K. Lancey, asking leave to execute a receipt in full of all demands to date against Franklin Smith, and a discharge to one C. N. Gower of all liability under certain agreements given by him to said Lancey relative to certain execution lands, so far as said Smith is bound to protect said Gower, and a receipt in full to date of all claims against Smith & Meader, said Smith being desirous of having a complete and irrevocable bar to all claims on the part of said estate, and it seeming just that he should have the same, as from a careful examination it appears at least that nothing is due from him and by an amicable settlement all litigation and consequent expense to said estate may be avoided. It is ordered, that notice of this application be given to all parties interested to appear at the June Term of this Court, to be held at Bangor on the 28th day of June, A. D. 1881, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, by publication twice a week in the Bangor Daily Whig and Courier and Daily Kennebec Journal.
Witness the Honorable Edward Fox, Judge of the said Court and the seal thereof, at Portland in said District, on the 25th day of May, A. D. 1881.
[L. S.] WM. P. PREBLE,
Clerk of District Court for said District.

Water Power For Sale.
One of the best water powers in the State of Maine, at the junction of the Penobscot and Piscataquis rivers, two hours run from Bangor, the fall being upon a solid ledge with the right to carry one-third of the water of the Piscataquis through a "Natural canal on the South side, which empties into the Penobscot, one and one-half miles below, through which the river could be turned with insignificant cost." "The land upon the canal is level and but little elevated above high water." "It affords sites for any number of mills, of unsurpassed excellence, and easily and cheaply improved." See what "Wells' Water Power of Maine" says of this, page 313, Howland: "No more favorable opportunity could possibly be offered for manufacturing on an extensive scale," where the bark can be floated to the mills from both rivers, with a railroad close by. Some two thousand acres of well timbered and tillage land can be had with the power, if desired.
